4. Written Feedback

4.1) What were the strengths of this course and/or instructor?

- A major strength of this course was that I learned a lot of things that were both applicable to the class and to work outside of class. This class taught me a lot about economics in food and wine. It also sharpened my skills as we used word, excel, mini-tab and google sites. This class targeted to improve our own skills as students to better prepare us for life after college and efficiently taught us about food and wine economics. Prof. Dolar was also very helpful in case anyone had questions or needed help with assignments after or outside of class.
- Professor Dolar makes sure that the work is clear
- Tied together alot of nutritional information in correlation to food and wine economics.
- she is a teacher that is straight to the point
- very passionate about class, learned a lot

4.2) What were the weaknesses of this course and/or instructor?

- The class is a little bit to hard
- The course could've been more interesting
- There were no real weaknesses of this class. The snow days this semester did push us back so we did not get to do everything as intended. However, Prof. Dolar did a good job of picking up the pace and teaching us as much as we could learn despite missing a few days due to the snow.
- some assignments where very long

4.3) Use this space for any additional comments.

- I did not know this was a writing intensive course when I signed up for this class. My thoughts coming into this class was that it was going to be a simple economics class. However, that was not the case and I am very happy that it wasn't. I have learned more in this class than a few classes combined because of the approach of using so many different platforms to do our work. We created our own websites which helped me review better. We also used word and excel and this class improved my comfort with all of these applications. I was also introduced to mini-tab, which I did not even know about prior to taking this class. I would highly recommend this class to people who want to learn and apply their knowledge through different platforms while simultaneously sharpening their skills in such platforms.
- really enjoyed this class, professor Dolar went above and beyond in class to help us. thanks!
